Project Description: Our clients for this project were in their eighties when they decided to re-clad their plaster townhouse. Investigations revealed that it was leaking and there was significant timber remediation required. The timber was replaced, and the house was re-clad and painted inside and out.

Our Role: We were the project manager and client representative on this project from start to finish. We coordinated the architectural and consultant teams, dealt with the local authorities, and tendered and contracted the works, overseeing the project through to completion.
