Project Description: The design and build of a highly specialised and detailed, in-situ concrete home on a large site. A complex building methodology utilising age-old techniques, not generally used today, but leading to stunning outcomes.

Our Role: We were engaged by the client as their project manager for the coordination of the design team and the establishment of a negotiated contract arrangement with the nominated contractor. We oversaw all aspects of the programme, including budget control, from start through to completion of the works.
